.about us

1 . Introduction

Hazem Shoukry Designs, established in 1987, is a manufacturer specialised in the artisanal craft of everything stone. We are a firm of architects, engineers and craftsmen dedicated to optimising your space and elevating its potential through our services. We offer architectural consultations to our clients to ensure all your space's needs are being met, and open your eyes to possibilities you might not have considered before. Hazem Shoukry Designs pioneered the stone industry in Egypt, the Middle East, and the world through expanding the horizon of stone production, by showing its versatility and endless potential.

Having completed projects all throughout the Egypt, the Gulf, the United States, and Europe, our portfolio only continues to grow. From tables, dining tables, kitchen counter tops, bathroom sinks and bathtubs to interior and exterior cladding, flooring and all the way to sculptures and statues, if you can dream it, we can make it.

A home that truly speaks of elegance. Beige suggests a sense of warmth, comfort, and reliability. It exudes a sense of serenity and balance, making it a popular choice in interior design, while black, on the other hand, symbolizes power, sophistication, and authority. It is a color that demands attention and evokes a sense of mystery. Those two contrasting colors come together in a simple yet carefully-curated marriage that created this masterpiece.

Where stone meets other media. In the following design we can see brass and stainless steel inlay in Bardiglio marble with zero-tolerance seams. This know-how is exclusive and unique at Hazem Shoukry, pioneers in mixing and combining materials since 1987. Brass inlay can also be found in the wall cladding, which leads back to the fact that all elements are designed at once to ensure the unity of the design of the space.

Inspired by Frank Lloyd-Wright's early Prairie style, which incorporated clean, straight lines and geometric shapes, the design consists of 3 main marble types. The first being Nero Marquina, a type of rich black Spanish marble, cut into 3 mm thick strips in the highest precision. The second being the yellow Giallo Siena marble, for a pop of colour and contrast, then lastly comes the neutral Burdur Beige marble. The 3-mm thick seams in black give the overall appearance of a painting in the entrance lobby floor. Your entrance is what speaks for the rest of the house.

Visualizing your interior space can be a helpful tool when planning and designing your home. By creating a clear mental image of how you want your space to look, you can make more informed decisions about furniture placement, color schemes, and overall aesthetics. This can save you time and money in the long run by avoiding costly mistakes or unnecessary purchases. Additionally, visualizing your interior space allows you to experiment with different design concepts and layouts before committing to any changes.

. unprecedented precision

As close as marble gets to real life.

"By the Nile River" combines 'old Egyptian' art and modern Egyptian art. Engraved in 25 cm thick Bardiglio marble

The Egyptians settled the Nile River and their lives to revolved entirely around this immortal river; ancient Egypt wouldn't have existed if it wasn't for the sacred Valley of the Nile with its endless riches. This led to the spark of the conflict between the Egyptian and the Nile, which triggered the origination of the first country in the history of civilization; Egypt, the land that is now at its peak of novelty in our contemporary world.

This piece is one of the clearest examples of how marble can be made to speak and represent.

. project: VIP CONFERENCE HALL, NEW CAPITAL

. year: 2017

. materials: bardiglio marble

. unprecedented precision

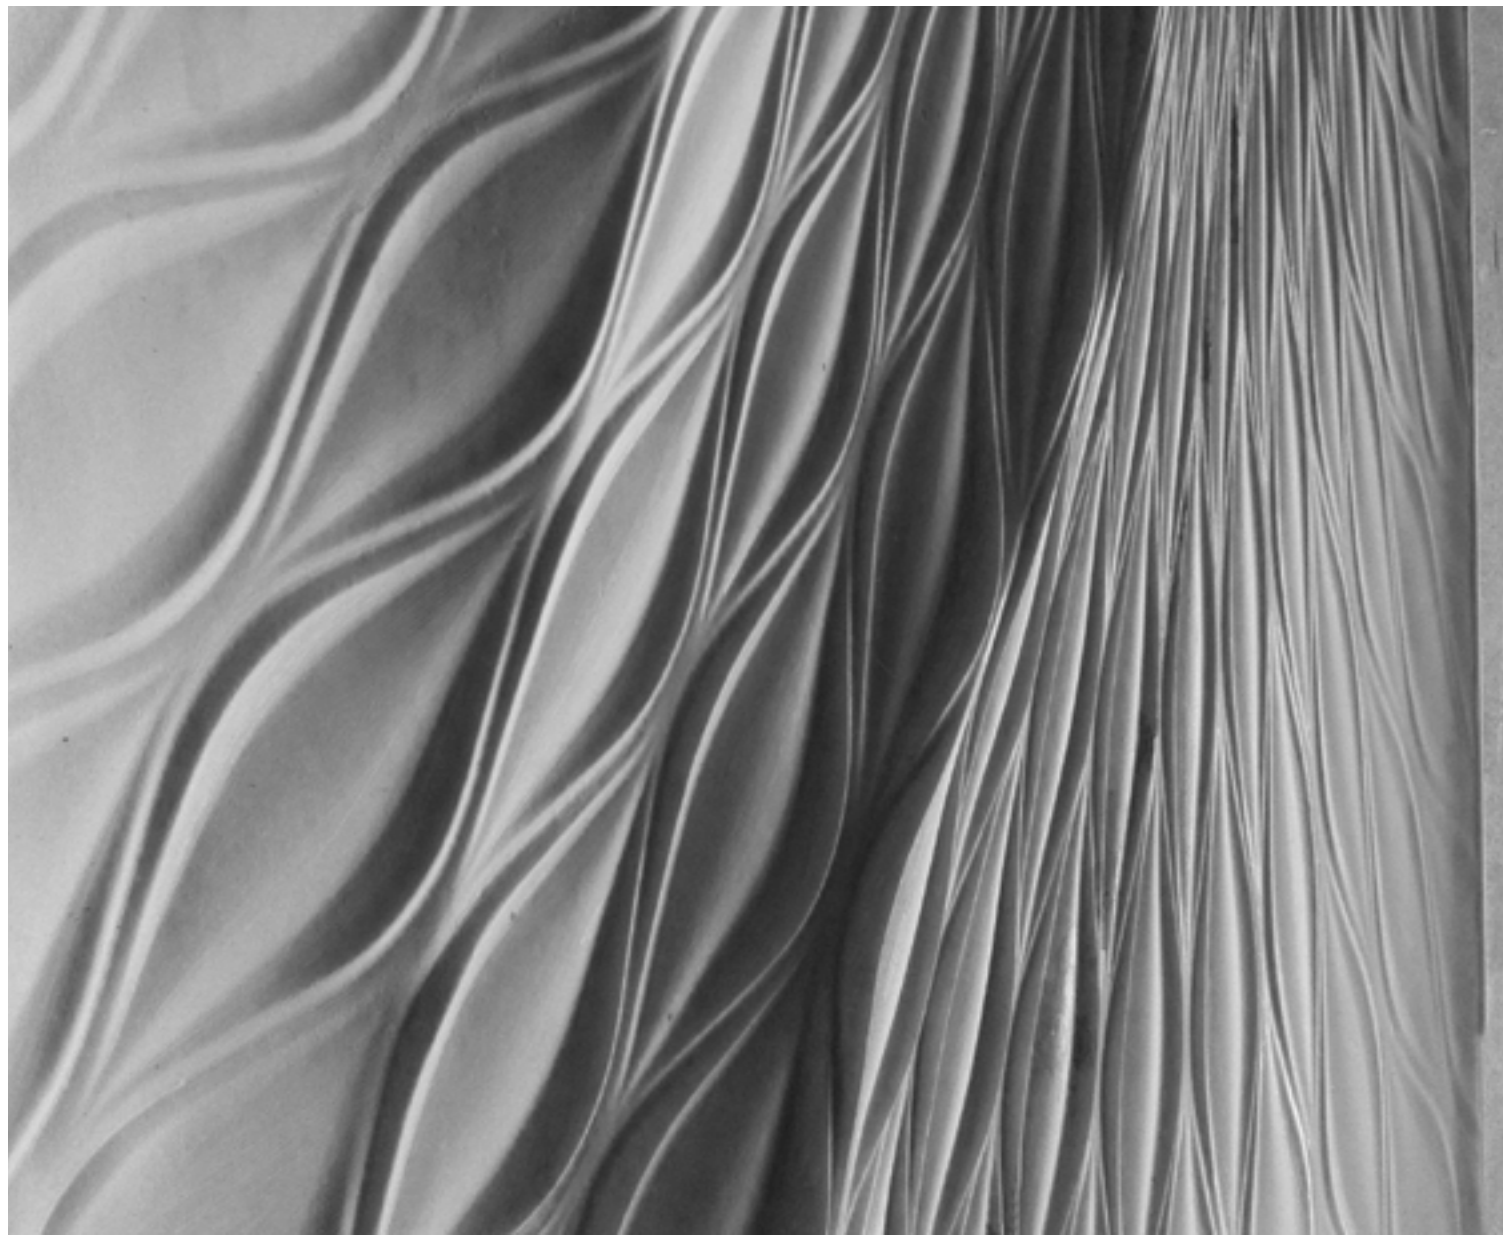

The first time Hazem Shoukry debuted this design was in Marmomac fair in Verona, Italy in 2008. The technique used to execute this simple-looking design was the most innovative of its time. This design was executed by a CNC fully robotic system machine of 3-axis milling. The next step that follows is finishing by hand in order to achieve the most intricate details. The design was inspired by oriental patterns seen in 15th-century buildings.

. colors and patterns

Unique and instantly recognizable, peacock patterns were a fun way to incorporate vibrant colors and patterns into this outdoor passage design. Peacocks are often associated with beauty, grace, and abundance, and this is what the design reflects. The execution of this design is the most interesting part, where each single piece of marble mosaic has its own size and distinct shape, cut piece by piece. In this type of mosaic, the base origin of the pattern is not a square, it has a radial base.

. project: KATAMEYA HEIGHTS VILLA

In this pattern of blues, the mosaic base origin is a square which gives the repetitive end result to the design. Each marble mosaic piece is 8 mm * 8 mm. The beauty of marble mosaic lies in its versatility and the fact that any design whatsoever, is indeed achievable. Here once again, know-how plays the biggest role in achieving successful, durable results.

. year: 2022

. materials: galala, crema marfill, gold-plated stainless steel

Masjid Misr, located in the heart of Egypt's New Administrative Capital. Galala limestone, the local stone of choice, was cut by a CNC milling machine, alongside the embedded golden stainless-steel motifs that were cut by a CNC laser machine allowing o-tolerance between both uniting pieces. Presented with complex challenges, the team developed a structural approach of designing metal channels, welded to the dome steel truss and ring beam, to allow the mechanical fixation of the stone-and-stainless-steel units.

Part of Egypt's Islamic Cultural Centre, Masjid Misr is the heart of Egypt's new administrative capital. The design of the Dome and outer staircase Balustrade depict the timelessness of Islamic patterns and motives while portraying the designers' intention to fuse classic architectural design elements and advanced construction techniques, reaching the epitome of modernity.

The Galala block was chosen with minimal veining to match the surroundings, and was then cut by a CNC milling machine, alongside the embedded stainless-steel motifs that were cut by a CNC laser machine allowing o-tolerance between both uniting pieces. Presented with complex challenges, the team developed a structural approach of designing metal channels, welded to the dome steel truss, to allow the mechanical fixation of the stone-and-stainless-steel units.

The design team then minted the concept of melding Galala limestone and gold-plated stainless steel for the dome. The designer then garnished the drum with 16 ornamental stone windows with embedded mirrored glass, topped with intricate CNC-engraved motifs for the base ring and a gold-plated stainless-steel lantern to embellish the summit. The lantern was rested on a one-piece milled Galala crown to top the cupola.

. more than a handrail

The unique balustrade design of Masjid Masr in the new administrative capital in Egypt.

An exterior balustrade was curated to envelope the outer staircase leading to the sub-level “Dar”. The fence and outer staircase handrail were engraved by a CNC milling robot. The intriguing part of the design process for the balustrade of the handrail was to seamlessly mimic the slope of the staircase, in order to imply the unity of the staircase and the balustrade.

. project: MASJID MISR, NEW CAPITAL

. year: 2021

. materials: crema marfil marble

Crema Marfil marble, quarried in Spain, was chosen to be the stone in use for the exterior balustrade. It was curated to envelope the outer staircase leading to the sub-level "Dar". Columns are integral architectural elements that help to support extra weight and ceiling span without using additional solid walls. They can increase the amount of space within a structure, or even just be an aesthetic addition to a building. Marble columns can help entrances look lighter and function as alternative aesthetics to exteriors on buildings as well. Columns can also be incorporated along walls of an exterior, or even stand free from walls and ceilings, almost acting like a sculpture or a separate piece of art.

.life-size carving

Expressionism.

Life-size marble sculptures of humans are a captivating form of art. The intricate details and the realism captured in these sculptures are truly remarkable. The use of marble as the medium adds to the elegance and timelessness of the artwork. The size of these sculptures allows for a more immersive experience, as viewers can appreciate the human form in its true scale. Whether displayed indoors or outdoors, these sculptures add a touch of sophistication and beauty to any space.
